A Story of Interest

In September, 1914, the owner of Account No. 6133 in the South Paris Savings Bank made an initial deposit of ten dollars; since that time he has regularly added five dollars a month to that account. On June 15, 1924, the account amounts to $724.03, and more than $127.00 of that amount is interest.

On Buying a Maine Farm The house should be white,
The barn red,
The farm carts blue,
There should be a hillock for the dead,
And a bed-room view,
Old apple trees,
A rooster to crow,
Down by the cornfield
A sunflower row,
Cows each with her bell,
A fat plow horse,
A maiden birch wood

BOSTON MARKET REVIEW

Prepared by the Boston Office of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture

For Week Ending June 21, 1924 DAIRY AND POULTRY PRODUCTS

June 19.—Dressed poultry receipts were lighter under a fair demand and clearance of stocks has been quite satisfactory. The tone of the market at the close was steady to firm at slightly lower prices. Fowl 5 lbs. 31-32c, 4-4½ lbs. 30-31c, 3-3½ lbs. 28-29½c, broilers 43-45c, roosters 20-21c, small 17-18c.
Live poultry firmer with supply about equal to the demand. Fowl 26c, chickens 30c. Butter market has generally ruled firm with the exception of one easy spot. Consumptive demand and the usual June contracts have been sufficient to absorb receipts, with the most of this demand centered around 90 score butter. Top grades were in better demand at the close. 92 score 42c, 90-91 score 41½c, 39 score 39½40c, 87 score 39c. Egg market has ruled irregular with prices working higher on top grades. Trade has been fairly active with buyers critical but willing to pay for quality. Storage packed eggs have not been moving satisfactorily, but are firmly held. Cheap eggs have been in good demand. Extras 31-32c, extra firsts 39c, firsts 27½28c, seconds 26½-27c, near-by hennerys 31-34c, and browns up to 36c. Storage packed extra firsts 29-29½c, firsts 28½c.

New potatoes weakened under heavy receipts, closing at $3.75-4.10 per barrel for Southern Cobblers. A few sales of Va. stock were made slightly higher. Old potatoes are in but little demand, with the season practically over. Green Mts. per 100 lbs. sacks closed at $2.00. Cantalcupes also weakened as receipts became heavier. Calif. standard crates closed at $2.75-3; jumbos $3.25-3.50; ponys $2.25-2.50 and fiats $1.15-1.25. Watermelons are in moderate supply, closing at 40-70c each, depending on size. Warmer weather increased the demand for watermelons and cantaloupes. Strawberries remain about loupes. Strawberries remain about steady, with homegrowns appearing on the market. Maryland and Delaware 32 steady, with nomegrowns appearing on the market. Maryland and Delaware 32 qt. crates of various varieties closed at 6-18c per qt. depending on quality and condition. Carolina dewberries closed at 8-15c per qt. with light receipts. Onions are firm, closing at $2.25-2.50 for Calif. and Texas yellow Bermuda crates. Egyptian onions closed at $4.50 per 112 lb. sack. Iceberg lettuce is arriving in generally poor quality and condition and range is from $1-4. Occasional sales of fancy stock were made at $4.50. Limited supplies of New York bu. baskets of Baldwin apples sold at $1.75-2.00. Wakefield cabbage is about steady, closing at $1.50-2 per barrel crate. Hampers from Md. sold at $1-1.25. Nortolk crates of beets sold at 6c per bunch, and Miss. hampers of ordinary condition at 75c-$1.00. Carrots are steady, closing at 4-5c punch and 75c-$1.25 per hamper. Calif. crates sold at mostly $3.50. N. C. bu. baskets of carrots closed at $1.50-2. $500,000 from Col. Edward H. R. In spite of a chilly, backward sea-

How to Make Sponge Cake, Sponge cake is always welcome, whether topped with luectous sliced peaches or strawberries, or used as the piece de resistance of afternoon tea or a porch supper.

Of course, much depends upon the baking, and for sponge cake, as for any other cake, the use of a heat-regulated oven or a portable oven thermometer solves the problem. By the use of one or the other, it is possible to heat the oven to the desired temperature, and to maintain this temperature throughou the entire baking period. The Institute has a favorite spong cake recipe which is easily made and always produces a cake which is light fluffy, and delectable in texture. T make this cake, measure and combine one and one-fourth cupfuls of sugar and one cupful of water. Place over a rathe slow heat, and stir until the sugar is dis solved. Then continue simmering with out stirring until the sirup reaches 288 .. or threads when tested with a fork deanwhile separate the yolks and whites of six eggs. Beat the egg-whites unt stiff enough to hold their shape when the bowl in which they are beaten is in verted. When the sirup has reached the desired temperature, pour it over the beaten egg-whites very gradually, beating constantly. Continue beating until the six egg-yolks until they are thick half teaspoonful of vanilla. Beat well Evening, 15c and 35c. and then fold into the egg-white mixture throughly. As the next step, measure and sift together one cupful of pastry flour, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, and one teaspoonful of cream of tartar.

Fold this flour mixture into the egg mix ture and continue folding until both mixtures are thoroughly combined. Grease a loaf or angel cake pan very lightly, and dredge well with flour. Be at this constant temperature. It is no necessary to examine the cake until the baking period is over, for with a constant 320° F. heat, there is no danger of the cake burning. At the end of the baking period, instead of removing the sponge cake from the pan immediately, turn it upside down on a cake cooler, which allows a circulation of air under the cake. Allow the cake to remain i this position until it has shrunk sufficiently from the cake pan, and then lift off the pan. The cake should be as light as a feather, even grained, and delicate of texture. Such a delicious cake in itself is most frequently served without frosting, with just a sprinkling of powdered sugar over the top.

Often one desires a smaller sponge cake, and the following is an excellen recipe: Separate two eggs and beat the yolks until light. Add gradually one half cupful of sifted sugar, and one eighth teaspoonful of cream of tartai mon or orange. Meanwhile measure and sift one-half cupful of pastry flour. Beat the two egg-whites until still enough so that the bowl in which they are beaten can be inverted. Add the sifted flour and beaten egg-whites alternately to the egg-yolk mixture. Pour into a lightly greased and floured pan and bake at $20° F. for forty minutes.

Salt, Its Use as a Seasoning. "It's bad luck to spill the salt," This to salt which go far back in civilization but it has been found that the use of salt is an acquired civilized habit. People living in a primitive state of civilization do not use it and do not crave it, but people who are accustomed to using salt miss it greatly when they are deprived of it. They especially crave it with vegetable foods.

In the past few years there has been a craze for a salt-free diet for the treatment of many diseases and even in health, but the tendency is now somewhat the other way. Extreme salt restriction, except in a few diseases, is now passing out. Salt is a normal constituent of the body. tituent of the body, there being about eight parts of sodium chloride or common salt in one thousand parts of human blood. The hydrochloric acid of the gastric juice is formed from the chlorine

Foods naturally contain sufficient salt to meet the needs of the body: The main reason then for adding salt to foods is flavor, for it certainly adds a zest to oods when one is accustomed to its use Salt is the most important condiment being used by more people and in larger amounts than any other condiment. I is also quite important in this position

Most people, however, eat too much salt, the average daily consumption being about two-thirds of an ounce for each person, and some use considerably more. This is about three or four, times what it should be. The excessive pouring of salt on the food at the table is due either to a careless habit, or to an attempt to discrete the discrete of the food at the salt of tempt to disguise the flavor of poorly seasoned or otherwise improperly pre-pared food. Each vegetable has its own flavor, which may be lost when salt is used excessively, and the desirable thing General Repairing is to have this true vegetable havor developed to the highest degree. Salt brings out the vegetable flavor and may be added until this point is reached, but it should not be added to the point where the flavor of salt is distinguishis to have this true vegetable flavor de-

Salting is largely a question of method rather than amount. It is better to add salt before the food is cooked, thus cooking the flavor in, for a small amount of salt added to foods before or during cooking penetrates to all parts of the food uniformly. This was borne-out in experiments conducted in Good House keeping Institute. String beans were selected for the experiment, as any toughening of the fiber could readily be detected in them. Equal quantities of number two, salt was added one half hour before cooking was completed. Salt was added to the beans in kettle preferred the flavor of the beans to which he salt was added in the beginning, with he beans to which salt was added the last half-hour of cooking as the second choice. If the vegetables are toughened by boiling in salted water, it is but very ittle, and the improvement in flavo more than compensates for it.

When the salt is added to the food after it is cooked, there is a probability that more salt will be added than is needed. The salt will not penetrate to all parts of the food, and the flavor will not be so well developed. One will also probably be able to detect a salt flavor, and the effect will last not only in the Salt should be added to the foods to and repairing. In cooking cereals, use one to one and one-fourth teaspoon fuls of salt to a quart of liquid. The salt should be added to the water before the cereal is added. In cooking vegetables, the members of the testing staff found that either one or one and one-
